Rear Admiral Winfield S. Schley to Be Retired Today.

Orders Terminating His Long and Honorable Service Issued Monday -His Life, Pull of Stirring Events, a Part of American History

Navy Department on Monday, Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schler, J. S. N., will be placed upon the retired list today, having reached the age limit of sixty-two years. Thus closes one of the most brillant active careers in the naval history of the United States. Rear Admiral Schley retires rich in honors and with the laurels he has won, in spite of all efforts of an intraguing clipse to deprive him of them. Winfield Scott Schice was born in Fredrick County Md., on October 9, 1838. That section of the State was settled to a considerable extent by Germans, many of whom came from Pennsylvania, and his ancestors were among the most promment of those who early located in West-in Maryland. He was appointed to the inted States Navat Academy at Annap-ist in 1816, when he was seventeen years age, and as an acting mid-hipman he completed the four years' course creditably. At the Academy he was known as popular, good-natured fellow, not over fond of his books, but with a daring and adventurous spirit which admirably fitted him for the life he had chosen.

Immediately after he graduated from the Academy, in June, 1850, Midshipman Schley was attached to the first-class frigate Nagara, which had been assigned o convey the first Japanese Ambassador o this country to his home. The commissioner had come on a mission from the Emperor of Japan to the United States, and the Government, as a compliment, ordered the Ningara to bear him back to his native land. The trip was back to his native land. The trip was made by way of the Cape of Good Hope, and the ship did not return until April of the following year. The civil war had just broken out, and Schley was con-fronted with the problem as to whether. should cast his lot with the Union or the chould east his lot with the Union or the Confederacy.

A majority of the officers of the navy at that time were Southern men, and as Schley came from a border State the situation was a very delicate on to him. At that time the Government had issued an order exacting all officers of the navy to take the control of the navy a take the eath of allegiance to the Inion, and Schley studied upon the mat-er for some little time, but after thinking it all over in his boyish mind, decided to fight for the old flag.

Shortly afterward the Niagara was or dered to Southern waters and within a few days was crutsing off Charleston, beginning the long blockade of that port. Soon after her arrival she captured a large steamer, the General Parkhill, on of the first prizes of the war. In spite of the fact that there were many officers of superior rank on the frigate, Captain McKean, as a graceful compliment to young Schley, selected him as the prize master, gave him a prize crew of ter men, and ordered him to take the steame to Philadelphia. It was the young midhipman's first grave responsibility, a well as his first command, but he was equal to the emergency. He delivered his charge safely to Admiral Dupont in Del-

Owing to the vacancies left in the navy by the Southerners who had resigned, Schley was quickly advanced and was made navigating officer of the frigate Pomade navigating officer of the frigate Potomac, cruising in the Gulf waters. In this capacity the young naval officer covered himself with glory when his ship ran into what was practically an ambuscade through chasing a schooner sent out as a decoy near Mobile Bar. He was commended for gallantry in the official report on account of his having rescued one of the cutters of the Pocomac in the face of a galling fire from the Confederate coast guard hidden behind the sandhills. In June, 1882, when the personnel of the may was reorganized, Schley was promoted to lieutenant and soon afterward assigned as executive officer of the gunboat Winona, on the Mississippi River. From that time until the fail of Port Hudson he saw incessant fighting. He was present at the slege of Vicksburg and his

He was a hundre For his gallant achievement, daring and bravery in this rescue, the Navy Department officially thanked and congratuated him, the Legislature of his native State thanked him, and voted him a gold chronometer, the Massachusetts Humane Society sent him a medal, and the geog raphers have given the name of "Schley Land" to the wide territory west of Cape Sabine. The President also nominated him as Chief of the Byreau of Equipment of the Navy, one of the eight great heads of this department. He held this position for a term of four years, and admini-tered it with marked ability. tered it with marked ability.

During the time he developed the education of the sailors, notably through the establishment of the gunners school in this city; equipped the first famous White Squadron; imagurated the system which enables sailors to deposit their savings with the Government and receive interest therefor; established the privilege of the chlisted man to a home on the receiving ship in the intervals of his enlistments, and reformed the dietary scale so that the rations of the men were very much improved.

From that time until the fall of Port Hadson, he was present at the sleep of Vicksburg and his ship was exposed to the Confederate batteries along the river and at one time came very near being sunk by the heavy fire from the shore. After the disastet at Port Hadson, in which the Winona, was lest, Schley was transferred to the Monongahela and then to the Richmond, both ships being almost continually creased. While on the latter vessel he took ashore two of the nine-inet guns and mounted them in battery on the left of the steps line at Port Hudson, where, under his command, they did excellent service.

When the campaign was successfully ended Schley, in July, 183, obtained his first leave and took advantage of the opportunity by getting married. He was next made executive officer of the Watere and sailed in her for the South Pacific. A serious revoit had broken out among the coolles of the middle Chincha Islands and the Wateree was sent to suppress it. A force was landed under Schley and engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with the natives. He succeeded in restoring order and the island was turned over to a Peruvian force. New Argentine Minister Received by the President.

Assurances of Mutual Nationa Friendliness Exchanged by Mr. Roosevelt and Senor Merou-No Developments at Cabinet Meeting

The Cabinet meeting yesterday was unmarked by any important developments. Attorney General Knox, Postmaster General Smith, and Secretaries Hitchcock and Wilson were the only officers of the Administration in conference with the President. Mr. Rooseveit expressed his cus-tomary desire for detailed departments nformation. Reciprocity and the Cuban election law, two of the most important topics with which the Administration and ongress will have to deal, were untouched. It is apparent that consideration of these subjects is being deferred until the Cabinet members now out of town return to Washington.

Not until next Friday will the trans Pacific cable matter be considered. At that time Attorney General Knox will submit to the President and the Cabinet a report bearing upon the precedents in respect to the granting of building privileges in the foreign possessions. It is expected that the matter will be discussed at length, so that the President may determine the attitude he will assume in treating the question in his message to Congress. It is understood that he intends to defer definite action on the mat-ter until Congress convenes, but that he will advocate the prompt construction of cable, either by the Government or by private enterprise.

Outside of the Cabinet meeting yester-day the principal event at the White House was the reception of the new Mingentine Republic, Senor Don Marten Garcia Merou. President Roosevelt received Minister Marou in the Blue Room. Alvey A. Adee, Assistant Secretary of State, wa dso present, and presented the diplomat to the President. The usual formal greet-ings were exchanged. Senor Merou adbressed the President, saving in part:

ings were exchanged. Senor Merou authressed the President: I have the honor to place in your Excellency's hands, together with the letters of recall of my predecessor, the cresonlinis of the President of the Argentine Republic which accredit me in the capacity of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary near your Excellency's Government. No mission could be more pleasing to me than that which I come to fulfill for the second time in this country. Not only on account of the ineffaceable recollections of the generous American haspitality which I ever retain in my mind, but on account of the many bonds of friendship and the traintional sympathy existing between the United States and the Republic which I have the honor to represent. That warm sympathy has just been once more eloquently manifested in connection with the painful misfortune which has befallen your Excellency's country, and which, at the same time, has vended in mourning the hearts of all Argentines. It has struck deep root in the history of our respective nations, in the uninterrupted friendship which has prevailed between them both, in the similarity of their political institutions, and, although on a maturally different scale, in the similarity of their progressive development."

President Roosevelt replied in part as President Roosevelt replied in part as

"Mr. Minister: I am glad to welcome you back to this Captual as the accredited representative of the Government of the Argentine Republic to the Government of the Argentine Republic to the Government of the United States. Your efforts during your first mission here for the maintenance of the most cordial relations between the two countries are not forgotten and leave me without doubt that it will be your earnest endeavor to still further strengthen the ties of friendship and commerce between the two peoples. "I sincerely appreciate the good wishes you express on behalf of his Excellency, the President of the Argentine Republic, and shall be pleased if you will assure him of the heartfelt wishes of the Government and people of the United States for the peace, prosperity, and happiness of the Argentine Republic.

"For your personal good wishes I thank you.
"I shall take occasion to acknowledge directly his Excellency's letter of recall of your predecessor."

As is usual on Cabinet days, the num than usual. Senator Mason of Illinois put in an appearance just as the Cabinet meeting was opening. He made an appointment for a meeting with the Presipretty well satisfied with the progress thus far, of the Senatorial campaign just opened in tilinois. Out of fourteen counties which have already held conventions.

Senator Mason will remain in Washington for several days.

Among the few who called yesterday, President Roosevelt's appointment of ex-Governor Jones of Alabama to the Federal bench in the northern and southern districts of that State was the frequent subject of comment. The appointment seems to have had just about the effect which President Roosevelt apparently hoped it would. The Southern negroes are highly pleased with it, and the South-ern Democrats regard it as an indication that they will not be altogether left out in the cold. The disgruntled element ap-pears to be confined to the Republicans who were aspirants for the place and to their supporters.

Representative Sherman and Representntive O'Grady, both of New York, called on the President before the Cabinet meeting. They are interested in the pending Federal appointments in the Empire State. Those matters were not discussed, having apparently been definitely settled in the course of Secutor Platt's confer-ences with President Roosevelt. Representative Sherman was a prominent figure in the Congressional fight over the Pacific cable in Congress two years ago. He opposes Government cables, but is cognizant of the imperative necessity for the early establishment of telegraphic communication between this country and the new possessions.

communication between this country and the new possessions.

James B Parker, the Atlanta negro who achieved prominence at the time of the assassination of President Mekiney by claiming to have assaulted Czolgosz, was among the callers at the White House yesterday moraing. He was accompanied by E. E. Cooper, of this city, and H. S. Cummings, of Baltimore, Mr. Roosevelt received the party cordially.

The East Room at the White House now presents the same appearance that it does in the height of the winter sension. The new carpet, which cost $1,700, has been laid, the linen covers have been removed from the furniture and the chandellers, and the heavy damask curtains again are hung in the deep windows. The official period of mourning will expire on the 19th inst. and visitors, who have been barred from the White House since the death of Fresident McKinley, will again be admitted to the East Room. On that day all the flags on the public buildings will again be flown from the tops of their staffs. Individuals who have displayed mourning at their places of business, and at their homes, will generally remove the sombre trappings of sorrow at that time. President Roosavelt will leave. Washington Monday evening. October 21, for New Haven. Coma., where, during the Yale Bi-Centennial exercises, on October 24, he will receive the honorary degree of LL. D. from that university. Mrs. Roosevelt will neave and will receive the honorary degree of LL. D. from that university. Mrs. Roosevelt will heave not yet been arranged, it is expected that Mr. Roosevelt will leave New Haven on the night of the day he receives the degree and will consequently arrive in Washington some time the following day. Miss Alice Roosevelt will leave New Haven on the night of the day he receives the degree and will consequently arrive in Washington some time the following day. Miss Alice Roosevelt will return with him to Washington.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The wedding at noon today of Miss Abby Greene Aldrich and John D. Rockefeller, jr., will take place in the so-called ten house of the country home of the bride's father, United States Senator Aldrich, at Warwick Neck, B. L. The bridegroom, the son and heir of John D. Rockefeller, of the Standard Oil Company, the his cousins, William C. Rockefeller and Percy A. Rockefeller, will marry a rich girl. Their wives were sisters, the Misses Still-man, daughters of James Stillman. Miss Aldrich will receive a large dowry, and as her father is many times a millionale she is a prospective helicess.

The tea house which will be the scene of the wedding has been used as a play-house for the Aldrich children. The decorations for the welding have been arranged on a sumptnous plan. The ceing of the room, like the walls, has been covered with white slik. On the wal are hung effectively half-baskets fills with feathery vines and purple orchida At one end of the room there is a big mantlepiece and this is banked solidly with orchide.

Miss Aldrich will wear a satin gown wit soint lace. The gown was made in New York. It is expected that some of the magnificent diamond ornaments presented by members of the Reckefeller family will form part of the bridal costume. Mr. Rockefeller will await his bride in front of the big mantispiece and under a canopy of illies of the valley. The Rev. James G. Vose, a retired Congregational minister, who is a personal friend of the Aldrich family, will perform the ceremony. Unless some arrangment has been made for the introduction of a part of the Episcopal service ther will be no occasion for the bride to be given away. The bridesmaids will be Mis-Lucy Aldrich and Miss Elsie Aldrich, sis-ters of the bride, and the Messrs. Aldrich will be the ushers. After the guests have xtended their congratulations they will pass into the big marque, put up for the occasion, where an elaborate breakfast will be served.

This is to be adorned with palms and imerican Beauty roses. There is one large buffet and several small tables in the marque. The guests will be conveyed at 2 p. m. by a special steamer to Provi-dence. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller will start on their bridal Mrs. Rockefeller will start on their bridal trip. On their return they will live in the house in West Fifty-fourth Street presented by the bridegroom's father.

The scheme of the brilliant wedding keeps it entirely outside of the house itself. Senator and Mrs. Aldrich have been quietly entertaining within its walls the most important members of the family party. Senator Aldrich is to erect in the place of the old house a new million-doilar structure.

It has been announced that the marriage of Senator Depew and Miss May Palmer will take place in December, at the home of Miss Palmer, in Paris.
